ISADORA DUNCAN IS LET IN, PEEVED BY PROBE OF MISSION

(Associated Press Night Wire)
NEW YORK, Oct. 2. — Isadora Duncan, and her exuberant young poet-husband, Serge Yessenin, were permitted to land in the United States today after the department of justice had detained them 24 hours to learn whether the dancer, who arrived from Moscow yesterday, was a courier for the Russian soviet government.

Isadora was in a bad humor to-night and she did not reveal much happiness over finally being allowed to enter the country.

It was officially stated that the department of justice detained the dancer because of her long residence in Russia and gossip that connected her with the soviet government and because it was suspected that she might be a courier for the soviet on her ostensible dancing tour of this country.

BIRD WILKINS BADLY HURT, IN FIGHT TO LIVE

Bird Wilkins was a badly wounded man yesterday, and his doctor and friends are hoping that his good constitution will pull him through. Wounded in the first hunting accident of the season, the evening before the big deer hunt started, he lay in the Mercy hospital fighting to retain strength that he might recover from a bullet wound that pierced him thru the upper part of the lung cavity, narrowly missing the great arteries that arch up over the heart.

Loss of blood was a serious handicap. Wilkins was shot by William Cook, a chum, at a point near the Lynx Creek bridge last Saturday evening. Cook was firing, some say, at a deer, and Wilkins received the charge in his left breast.

Cook then carried the wounded man two miles toward the road, and with help, later, got him into town where he was taken to the hospital about 10:30 Saturday night.

Dr. Yount, who is in charge of the case, said that he hoped to pull the injured man through. That Wilkins lived with a bullet passing so close to vital tissues, and with the further loss of over a quart of blood was a marvel to the physician.
